Abstract

The conceptual framework of brand image is a combination of antecedents, moderators and outcomes that create differential effects on customer response to the marketing of the brand. By constructing a conceptual framework of brand image, organizations will build a competitive advantage in the marketplace that will increase their overall image with long-term sustainability. Indeed, recent trends in modern marketing have changed tremendously, and study of conceptual framework of brand image is increasingly becoming considerable to keep pace with this change. In this conceptual paper, we have summarized the literatures on currently prevailing concepts and approaches on brand image that will allow us to identify the conceptual framework of brand image, and therefore will facilitate organizations to enhance their marketing efficiency and effectiveness. In this framework, we discussed a case study in Bangladesh, and in light of the findings of this case study we put forward the notion that the conceptual framework of brand image need to be associated with organizational activities.

1. Introduction

Conceptual framework of brand image is a combination of antecedents, moderators and outcomes that create differential effects on customer response to the marketing of a brand. Considering the importance of brand image, since last decade organizations are engaged to construct the conceptual framework of brand image and enhance sweet blow into customers mind. The conceptual framework indicates a combination of antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image. Actually, antecedents, moderators and outcomes are latent variables of brand image whose task to build and hold brand image into customers mind for a long period of time. In this regard, the conceptual framework of brand image bears great significance into today's modern marketing environment. Moreover, the conceptual framework of brand image is one of the essential blocks of customer-based brand equity that underlies as perceptions about a brand which reflected by the brand associations apprehended in customer's memory (Keller, 1998). Hence, it is acknowledged that the conceptual framework of brand image plays an important role as antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image that assists organizations and their brands to keep touch within customers' memory for a long period of time.

With this background, this paper we attempt to present a conceptual framework of brand image. We have discussed a conceptual framework that includes brand awareness, brand association, brand superiority, brand affection, brand resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, brand familiarity, customer satisfaction, brand trust and attitudinal loyalty that is based on a comprehensive review of the existing literatures and a case study of very prominent hotel brand in Bangladesh. In an attempt to discuss the managerial implications of the conceptual framework, a scenario based on a case study is presented in this paper.

2. What is Brand Image

Keller (1998) underlies that brand image has long been recognized as an important concept in marketing and although marketers have not always agreed about how to measure it, one generally accepted view is that brand image is consumers' perceptions about a brand, as reflected by the brand associations held in consumer memory. Keller (2008) mentions in that creating a positive brand image takes marketing programmes that link strong, favorable and unique associations to the brand in memory. Customers are able to form brand associations in a variety of ways other than marketing activities: from direct experience; through information from other commercial or nonpartisan sources. As such, the brand image can be considered as the key concept between the brand and the brand equity based on customer. Moreover, in developing strong brand image through organizations that assist customers to build strong mindset about brand (Katke, 2007).

In this perspective, it can be suggested that by establishing brand image the effect of brand image will build as well as sustain for a long period of time in customers mind. As a result, brand image makes essential impact to explore the effect of conceptual framework of brand image including brand awareness, brand association, brand superiority, brand affection, brand resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, brand familiarity, customer satisfaction, brand trust and attitudinal loyalty.

3. A Conceptual Framework of Brand Image

Based on literature review, the conceptual framework that explain the antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image in a competitive market, known as conceptual framework of brand image. The twelve elements of this framework that includes brand awareness, brand association, brand superiority, brand affection, brand resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, brand familiarity, customer satisfaction, brand trust and attitudinal loyalty of the brand are discussed below.

3.1 Brand Awareness

According to Keller (1998 and 2008), brand awareness underlies brand recognition and recall performance. Both components are playing active role to build brand image. Moreover, brand awareness creates pressure to increase brand image. So brand awareness is the first step by which customers aware about a brand as well as organization and builds strong associations in the mind of customers. Indeed, brand awareness is the first antecedent of proposed conceptual framework of brand image.

3.2 Brand Association

Brand associations are helpful tool for marketers. By using brand associations, marketers differentiate their brands and make a strong position not only customers mind but also into competitive marketplace. According to Aaker (1991), brand associations build and create positive attitudes and feelings towards brands in the mind of customers that enhance brand image. Moreover, brand association is the second antecedent of proposed conceptual framework of brand image.

3.3 Brand Superiority

According to Keller (2009), brand superiority directly communicates with customer evaluation process. With the help of evaluation process, customers generate perceptions in their mind towards brands. In this regard, brand superiority can play an important role to generate positive perceptions about brands in the mind of customers. Moreover, brand superiority along with positive perceptions about brands enhance brand image. Indeed, brand superiority is the third antecedent of proposed conceptual framework of brand image.

3.4 Brand Affection

For affection, emotions can play a vital role and create great impact into customer behavior. On the other hand, in a modern consumer attitude model, emotions make relationship between cognitive evaluations and behavioral intentions (Bagozzi, 1992). Within emotional perspective, customers will increase their affection level about brands. Moreover, the affection level positively contributes in perception level. In this regard, affection along with perception enhances brand image, and brand affection is the fourth antecedent of proposed conceptual framework of brand image.

3.5 Brand Resonance

Brand resonance underlies final relationship with those customers who are affected by affection (Keller, 2003). With the help of brand resonance, organizations create strong brand loyalty. Moreover, brand resonance describes how to build strong loyal relationships with customers. In this regard, along with the loyalty, brand resonance which is the fifth antecedent enhances brand image for organizations as well as brands.

3.6 Corporate Social Responsibility

Nowadays, modern marketing realizes the significance of corporate social responsibility and its impact on brand image. The contribution of corporate social responsibility not only impact on brand image but also encompasses societal well-being (Murali Raman et al., 2012). Indeed, to win brand resonance in today's markets, corporate social responsibility has become a useful tool that enhance brand image. Meanwhile, corporate social responsibility is the sixth as well as final antecedent of the proposed conceptual framework of brand image.

3.7 Tourism Management

The term tourism comes from different perspectives like economic, managerial, marketing, social, environmental and so on (Rashidul, 1988). Tourism can be segmented into different categories. They would contain holiday travel, visiting friends and relatives (VFR), business travel, health treatment, shopping, conference, incentive travel, official mission, education, sport and others travel (Malaysia Tourism Promotion Board, 2004). According to International Association of Scientific Experts in Tourism (2001), Tourism is the combination of phenomena as well as relationships occurring from the travel and focus on non-residents whose intention do not lead to permanent resident and are not involved with any earning activity. In this context, tourism business is managed by different set of activities where need proper management system. Thus, tourism and management are closely interrelated to each other. In this regard, along with antecedents of brand image which moderated by the degree of tourism management that enhances brand image for organizations as well as brands.

3.8 Entertainment

From psychological and sociological point of view, entertainment and recreation services can play a significant role for the quality of tourism product (Vogt and Fesenmeier 1995; Weiermair and Fuchs 1999). On the other hand, from marketing point of view, entertainment as well as recreation services can also perform an important role for tourism product. Basically, Tourism is acknowledged by a service industry as well as entertainment industry (Barlow and Maul 2000). According to Middleton (1997), tourism product underlies into destination attraction, service facilities, accessibility to the destination, the images people have in mind and the price- the total costs of travel, accommodation and participation in several activities. Thus, tourists spend their time of "happiness" within entertainment industry. In this perspective, along with antecedents of brand image which moderated by the degree of entertainment that enhances brand image for organizations as well as brands. The following figure (Figure1: Conceptual Framework of Brand Image) shows the plausible antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image.

Figure1: A Conceptual Framework of Brand Image

3.9 Brand Familiarity

In above figure (Figure1), brand familiarity is the first outcome of the proposed conceptual framework of brand image. Brand familiarity defined as a customer's degree of knowledge connecting a brand through his or her direct and indirect experiences with the brand. Familiarity is being identical with knowledge and reflects on experiences to be the key contributor of brand (Cerjak et al., 2010). In this regard, for sustaining brand image, brand familiarity can play an essential role and enhance positive knowledge with experiences in customers mind.

3.10 Customer Satisfaction

Customer satisfaction is the second outcome of the proposed conceptual framework of brand image. Rai (2013) defined customer satisfaction as a buyer's emotional or cognitive response post subjective assessment and comparison of pre-purchase expectations and actual performance subsequent to the consumption of the product or service, meanwhile evaluating the costs incurred and benefits reaped in a specific purchase even or over time in course of transacting with an organization. Therefore, customer satisfaction can be defined by an overall satisfaction towards a certain brand based on total cumulative experiences in the mind of customers.

3.11 Brand Trust

Brand trust is the third outcome of the proposed conceptual framework of brand image. Trust is like a tie that occurs with customers. With the help of trust, customers bond those who are trustable. In this regard, organizations build a strong emotional bond where trust can play an active role (Mckinney, 2013). According to McKinney (2013), trust is a combination of credibility, care and congruency. All three components of trust can help to sustain brand image for a long period of time in the mind of customers.

3.12 Attitudinal Loyalty

Attitudinal loyalty is the fourth as well as last outcome of the proposed conceptual framework of brand image. Rai and Srivastava (2012) illustrated that a customer can express his degree of loyalty towards a service provider by either displaying a positive attitude or indulging in favourable actions or making conscious evaluations and finding a particular service worth sticking to. Indeed, attitudinal loyalty depends on customer's preference of emotional commitment towards a brand.

4. Case Study

A case study of one Bangladeshi brand hotel was undertaken to explain the approach of conceptual framework of brand image (antecedents, moderators and outcomes). The action points suggested through this case study reinforced the proposed conceptual framework of brand image that act as combination of antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image where all elements of suggested framework play as brand image antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brands of hotels.

6. Discussion

The suggested conceptual framework of brand image provides possible antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image to marketers. Along with possible antecedents, moderators and outcomes marketers make a strong brand image as well as customer relationship for a long period of time. Regarding a strong brand image and customer relationship, marketers take competitive advantages from target markets. Indeed, nowadays modern marketing and market is challenging for marketers to build brand image and sustain customer relationship for a long period of time. In this regard, this proposed framework should assist marketers to build brand image and sustain as well as maintain customer relationship for a long period of time. On the other hand, marketers also want to create strong resonance along with corporate social responsibility and loyalty with customers where the degree of tourism management and entertainment play a significant role. In this perspective, this suggested framework will assist marketers to create strong resonance along with corporate social responsibility and customer loyalty that is significantly moderated by the degree of tourism management and entertainment. The marketers will be able to do it from customer familiarity to a brand along with customer satisfaction, trust and attitudinal loyalty. Thus, this suggested framework should influence marketers to construct strong brand resonance along with corporate social responsibility and loyalty with the help of degree of tourism management and entertainment as well as sustainable brand image with the help of possible conceptual framework of brand image. We assume that with the help of this proposed framework, marketers will increase brand image and customers' knowledge level about an organization and its brands. We further assume that this framework will be highly acknowledged by customer-based brand equity. This is so as framework awareness, associations, superiority, affection, resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, familiarity, satisfaction, trust and attitudinal loyalty always knock to customer's engagement about a brand.

Finally, this proposed framework should not only provide theoretical authentication that supports the significance of antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image but also will present an accomplishment process which will show how the antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image can affect an organization's market performance in the marketplace. Therefore, we believe this proposed framework provides the much needed indication that high level of brand awareness, brand association, brand superiority, brand affection, brand resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, brand familiarity, customer satisfaction, brand trust and attitudinal loyalty increase the probability of the effect of brand image.

7. Conclusion

This paper discusses the conceptual framework of brand image that represents the antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image. This paper also presents a case study and discussed it based on the review of pertinent literatures. As discussed in this conceptual paper, brand image creates competitive advantage of product in the marketplace and enhance overall organizational goodwill, trust and credibility. We suggest that the antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image dimensions in the context of suggested conceptual framework of brand image would be a potential for building a strong brand in the modern marketing environment because the antecedents, moderators and outcomes of brand image can offer valuable managerial implications that will help the brand managers. Many of the ideas expressed in this proposed conceptual framework will provide a more comprehensive picture of how organizations can create brand image and sustain brand image for a brand. Moreover, we believe that with the help of this proposed conceptual framework, organizations will be able to build brand image and make customer relationship into a competitive marketplace. Overall, we suggest that the twelve variables proposed in conceptual framework of brand image namely, brand awareness, brand association, brand superiority, brand affection, brand resonance, corporate social responsibility, tourism management, entertainment, familiarity of the brand, customer satisfaction of the brand, trust on the brand and attitudinal loyalty of the brand can enable organizations to create brand image and sustain brand image for a long period of time in a competitive market.
